

Iberoamerican Network of Universities for CSR (REDUNIRSE)

The Iberoamerican University Network for CSR (REDUNIRSE) is a meeting point for private, public and semi-public of the region. It was created to favour the promotion and awareness on CSR issues. The Network is an space for regional and interregional cooperation on the exchange of new learning processes, research, best practices, etc.

The Network was created in 2007 as proposed by UNDP and the AECI, having its central point at the National Centre for CSR and Social Capital (FCE-UBA).

The Network aims to:

- Being a link between the various stakeholders involved in CSR.
- Encourage social capital in Latin America.
- Contribute to the creation of a socially responsible community.
- Promoting ethical human development.
- Disseminate and raise awareness on social responsibility.
- Support training and research activities around this subject.
