

University of the Southern Caribbean

University of the Southern Caribbean (USC) is a private, coeducational institution with a diverse student body with 3 locations in the twin-island Republic of Trinidad and Tobago along with sites in Antigua, Barbados Guyana and St. Lucia. It is operated by the Caribbean Union Conference of the Seventh-day Adventist church, and is housed on three hundred and eighty-four acres of land in the beautiful Maracas Valley. Graduates of the University serve the church and society, not only in the Caribbean, but also in many parts of the world. The University's name is honoured as many of its graduates have earned advanced degrees in internationally recognized and renowned institutions.
