

Panel at LASA2022 Virtual Congress, 5-8 May 2022

Title: The Europe, Latin America and the Caribbean relationship: extra-regional interests and contemporary agendas

Congress Track: "International Relations / Global Studies"

The Panel aims to explore, from an interregional and comparative perspective, the central issues of Latin American and Caribbean countries with Europe, the United States and the Indo-Pacific, particularly China, in order to identify interdependencies and vulnerabilities in the agendas and to establish an overview of the contemporary political and strategic dimensions of the region.

Session Organiser: Dr Adrián Bonilla, EU-LAC Foundation

Chair: Paz Verónica Milet García, Universidad de Chile

Speakers:

Luis Guillermo Solis, Professor - Florida International University, Director of the Kimberly Green Latin American and Caribbean Center:

The United States and the relationship between Europe and Latin America and the Caribbean

Andrés Serbin, President of the Executive Committee of the Coordinadora Regional de Investigaciones Económicas y Sociales (CRIES):

The relationship between Europe and Latin America and the Caribbean from the perspective of the Indo-Pacific space.

Anna Ayuso, Senior Researcher - Barcelona Centre for International Affairs (CIDOB):

Keys to reactivating the EU-CELAC partnership and channelling the globalisation of the future

José Antonio Sanahuja, Professor - Universidad Complutense de Madrid; Director of the Fundación Carolina

The other transatlantic relationship: the EU and Latin America and the Caribbean

Alejandra Liriano de la Cruz, Former Under-Secretary of Foreign Policy, Dominican Republic

The Caribbean and the Europe-Latin America relationship