Dr Adrian Bonilla
Executive Director, EU-LAC Foundation

The background to the current relationship between the European Union (EU) and Latin America and the Caribbean (LAC) dates back to the late 1980s and 1990s, when several of its states supported the re-democratisation efforts in the region and especially the peace processes following the civil wars in Central America. The first decade of this century was characterised by a time of prosperity in LAC, especially in South America. In those years, Latin America and the Caribbean also experienced several dynamics of regionalism. Probably the most significant was the establishment of the Community of Latin American and Caribbean States (CELAC), which integrated the Rio Group, then composed of 24 countries, with the rest of the region’s governments. CELAC thus became the reference point for producing common policies and visions with international counterparts. One of the most intense relations was that with the European Union.

Until 2010, six bi-regional summits were held. These dynamics took place in a scenario marked by a certain stability in the international order and by the moment of prosperity and social inclusion that Latin America and the Caribbean were experiencing. The EU-LAC Foundation is an initiative that arose in this context of rapprochement between the two regions, frequent meetings of Heads of State and Government and relative political stability. Since then, its activity has been defined by the agendas agreed upon by the highest governmental authorities.

Therefore, the holding of the III EU-CELAC Summit in July 2023, resuming the process interrupted in 2015, is of utmost importance. The bi-regional meeting at the highest political level focused on development issues. Consensus was established around the environmental, digital, and social transitions, which are necessary challenges to ensure a joint path towards the economic recovery of the two regions in human development logics based on the Sustainable Development Goals.

This newsletter introduces the reports of three of the events organised by the EU-LAC Foundation prior to the III EU-CELAC Summit: the EU-LAC Fora on Gender Equality, Knowledge, and Just Transitions. In addition, it invites to the EU-LAC Multi-actor Dialogue Forum, which will follow up on the agreements reached at the meeting of Heads of State and Government.

The Summit is the most significant event in the bi-regional relationship in recent years. The mere fact that it was able to take place and to have agreed on a substantive document of common policies expressed in the Final Declaration, shows the need of the 61 member governments of our Foundation to keep alive the commitment to sustain and advance in a relationship of strategic partnership, which is vital for all its members in the process of renewal of the international order we are living through.

The EU-LAC Foundation participates in the III EU-CELAC 2023 Summit
21 July 2023

The EU-LAC Foundation actively participated as an observer in the EU-CELAC Summit of Heads of State and Government on 17-18 July 2023 in Brussels. The meeting marked the resumption of high-level meetings between the two regions after an eight-year gap.

In the Declaration adopted, the EU and CELAC reaffirmed their long-standing partnership based on shared values and interests, as well as close economic, social and cultural ties. They also committed to deepening political dialogue and economic relations and to fostering people-to-people contacts and social relations.

The EU-CELAC Roadmap 2023-2025 includes high-level bi-regional events and dialogues to address issues of mutual interest, such as economy and finance, health, security, drugs, connectivity, research and innovation, space policies, among others.

EU-LAC Knowledge Forum Report

In the framework of its mission to facilitate the exchange between government authorities and civil societies of Latin America and the Caribbean and European Union countries, the EU-LAC Foundation organised on 24 and 25 April 2023 a Knowledge Forum with the aim of generating inputs to enrich the agenda of discussions of high-level authorities in the field of cooperation in science, technology and innovation, the EU-CELAC Common Area of Higher Education, as well as capacity building and access, equity and quality of knowledge.

The Forum brought together some 55 face-to-face and 50 virtual participants, mostly representatives of the student, academic and scientific communities, experts from international organisations specialised in the field and government representatives from LAC and EU countries. This report reflects, in synthesised form, the dialogues held during the Forum, as well as the information shared by experts through an ex-ante online survey.

EU-LAC Gender Equality Forum Report

The EU-CELAC Summit of Heads of State and Government offered the opportunity to generate a high-level strategic dialogue on the challenges and potential of bi-regional cooperation on gender equality in LAC and the EU. In this context, the EU-LAC Foundation organised a Gender Equality Forum on 11-12 May 2023 with the objective of generating inputs to the discussion agenda of high-level authorities in the field of women’s political, economic, and social rights, political leadership, care, gender-based violence, sustainable peacebuilding, and security.

The Forum brought together 81 face-to-face participants and 56 virtual participants - representatives of civil society networks and organisations working on gender equality and the rights of girls and women, as well as LGBTIQ+ people, experts, academics, members of cooperation agencies and international organisations specialised in the field, and government representatives from LAC and the EU. This report synthesises the exchanges that took place during the Forum, as well as the information shared by experts through a previous online survey.

EU-LAC Just Transitions Forum Executive Report and Rapporteur’s Report

The objective of the EU-LAC Just Transitions Forum, held on 15-16 May 2023 in Barcelona, was to generate a space for debate and reflection for experts, researchers and other civil society actors on the challenges and opportunities of bi-regional cooperation in the areas of climate change adaptation and mitigation; just energy transition; and inclusive digital transformation. In addition, it aimed at formulating recommendations for public policy decision-makers participating in the EU-CELAC Summit of Heads of State and Government.

As part of this project, two publications were produced: an executive report with the objective of guiding the actions of decision-makers, and another report detailing the main proposals and suggestions addressed to EU and CELAC Heads of State and Government, based on the topics discussed.

Opportunities for bi-regional cooperation to advance in an inclusive, quality-based, and sustainable transformation of the education sector

The EU-LAC Foundation is pleased to present in this publication the three winning essays of the III EU-LAC Essay Competition on the Bi-regional Partnership. The open call for essays was launched in August 2022 with the aim of encouraging young authors to reflect on ways to strengthen collaboration between Latin America and the Caribbean and the European Union in the area of education. In particular, to jointly address the challenge of advancing a sustainable transformation of the education sector for the benefit of our societies, ensuring equal access and quality of education, and turning educational institutions into agents of change for the social, ecological, and digital transformations of our time.

For the call, the term “education” was understood in a broad sense to include primary and secondary education, technical and vocational education and training, higher education and lifelong learning.

Perspectives and proposals for renewing the Strategic Partnership between the European Union and Latin America and the Caribbean

The event “Perspectives and proposals for renewing the strategic partnership between the European Union and Latin America and the Caribbean”, organised by the Carolina Foundation and the EU-LAC Foundation, aimed to generate new impulses, and stimulate joint reflections on the revitalisation of the bi-regional strategic partnership. It also generated exchanges on the effects of global challenges for the bi-regional political, economic, social, and environmental agenda and the identification of convergences in shared interests, values and principles among the actors that make up the bi-regional partnership.

During the day and a half of dialogue, around 60 participants from LAC and EU research centres studying central aspects of the bi-regional agenda gathered together, along with the presence of high-level authorities from the two regions and regional organisations, including Josep Borrell, High Representative of the EU for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy; and Keisal Peters, Minister of Foreign Affairs and Foreign Trade of Saint Vincent and the Grenadines and President of CELAC.

EU-LAC partnership: An opportunity to materialize principles
Carlos Alvarado. Former President of Costa Rica. Professor at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University.

21 August 2023

The European Union and Latin America and the Caribbean (EU-LAC) partnership often remains overshadowed in discussions about regional alliances. This is primarily due to considerations of scale and influence across various dimensions. When governments and businesses contemplate partnerships, their initial thoughts typically gravitate toward either the USA or China, given their considerable global presence, and not that often to the EU-LAC connection. Despite the aforementioned, the regional relationship between EU and LAC, with its considerable scale, derives its strength from shared values and ideas. The widespread support for democracy, as well as for the international system and human rights, is notable.

Accelerating progress towards the 2030 agenda: Three ways to close Gender Gaps
Bibiana Aído Almagro. Representative of UN Women Colombia

5 June 2023

In 1949, in her essay “The Second Sex,” Simone de Beauvoir appealed: “Never forget that a political, economic or religious crisis will be enough for women’s rights to be called into question. These rights are never taken for granted. You must remain vigilant throughout your lives”[i]. Her words make more sense today, in 2023 when in the wake of the socio-economic crisis generated by the COVID-19 pandemic and the advances of backlash movements, we are witnessing how the gender equality agenda has been affected and how in many countries, the inequality gaps between men and women are widening.
